PETERSFIELD MUSEUM COOKIE POLICY

Cookies and tracking users

Petersfield Museum website uses cookies to distinguish you from other users of our website. This helps us to provide you with a positive experience when you browse our website and also allows us to improve the usability of our website. We collect standard internet log information and details of visitor behaviour patterns. We do this to find out things such as the number of visitors to the various sections of our website. We collect this information in a way that does not identify anyone.

By continuing to browse this website, you are agreeing to our use of cookies.

What is a cookie

Like most other websites, we use cookies. Cookies can help a website to personalize your visit. A cookie is a small piece of text which can be stored on your computer, smartphone or other device you use to browse the web. Cookies have many uses, but mainly, they are used to store information about you on your computer. A cookie will typically contain the domain name from where the cookie has come, the lifetime of the cookie and a value, usually a random generated unique number.

How to control and delete cookies

We will not use cookies to collect personally identifiable information about you. You can block cookies by activating the settings on your browser that allow you to refuse the settings of all or some cookies. However, if you use your browser settings to block all cookies (including essential cookies) you may not be able to access all or parts of our website.

How to disable cookies

You can stop cookies being downloaded onto your computer by selecting the appropriate settings on your browser. However, please note that if you do this you may not be able to use the full functionality of this and other websites. There is more information about cookies, including how to delete them on the About Cookies website www.aboutcookies.org.uk

Implications of disabling cookies on this website

Please be aware that restricting cookies may impact the Petersfield Museum website from working to its full functionality on your browser.

This Cookie Policy was last reviewed in February 2020.
